

How to understand Lindab's abbreviated product codes.

Lindab is a Swedish product, so from an English perspective we won't try to explain what the first part of their abbreviated code means, however once you get your head around them, they are a handy identifier to help you understand what they represent. Each code has three sections. The first part is the product identifier for example, a BKM is a conical downpipe bend. The second part of the code is the size. This may refer to more than one dimension so sticking with the BKM, these can come in the different downpipe sizes and in different angles. So, a BKM7075 is a 70 degree angle and 75mm in diameter. The last part of the code is the colour/finish. For example, Majestic Galvanised is ZM. The entire code on this one product then would be BKM7075MG. Remember BKM - Product Identifier, 70 - Angle/Pitch, 75 - Diameter, MG - Finish.

The list of colours in their code form are as follows:

NAME	SWEDISH	ABBREVIATED CODE
Galvanised Magestic	Zinc Magnesium	ZM
Silver Metallic	Silvermetallic	SMET
Dark Grey	Mörkgrå	MGRA
Anthracite/Graphite Grey	Grafitgrå	GGRA

Anthracite Metallic	Anthracitmetallic	AMET

Now that we have covered of the list of colours in their abbreviated code form, lets dive into a list of all the products in their abbreviated code form. This should make it easy for you to understand all the parts. Bear in mind this is not the unique product code used to identify each unique part number as these are different again, but when cross referencing against an order with the product physically in front of you, you'll see these codes both on a product label and on the Lindab packaging itself.
